Long sleeping is an uncommon sleep finding or disorder characterized by the body's inclination to remain asleep for longer periods of time than would otherwise be deemed typical. This often results in 10 to 12 hours of sleep each night for people with the disorder. Less than that leaves them feeling unrefreshed and sleepy throughout the day. The disorder often begins in childhood and lasts ...

When you get home, feed baby an early lunch, then put him down to sleep at an "in between time." So, instead of 9:30 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. nap times, for example, keep baby awake in the morning then put him down at 12:00 p.m. Note how long he's able to sleep for that nap, it may be shorter and thus you'll have to move up bedtime.

Background: Previous studies have shown that both short and long sleep durations are related to increased likelihood of diabetes and hypertension. However, the relation between sleep duration and cardiovascular disease (CVD) is not clear. We examined the hypothesis that compared with sleep duration of 7 hours, shorter and longer sleep durations are independently related to CVD.
