There are 37 poems in "Lunch Poems" and their quality as well as their accessibility varies. The poems span a period from 1953 to 1964. This book is not a "best of" O'Hara collection, yet it does contain what may be his most durable poem. A few of these short pieces are so recondite that they lose me.

These poems might win a child a few new (hopefully less violent) friends when they get passed around the lunch table. Art Day Most students look forward to art class—there are endless possibilities in all those jars of poster paint and cans of glitter. Not to mention: no tests! But sometimes things can get a little . . .

O'Hara's 'Lunch Poems' is a sprezzatura lyric masterpiece. It is gasp after gasp of sublime lyric metamorphosis in the middle of the breathless workday, and as such, 'Lunch Poems' speaks of beautiful resistance of the soul in otherwise soulless conditions. This said, I do not feel the selected narrator was a good match for these poems.
